Jeff White

- > Chairman
- > American Logistics Association

Jeff White was born in Nashville, TN where he attended Middle Tennessee State University. He worked for Kraft Foods for his first five years out of college and moved to the Pillsbury Company in 1988. Jeff worked for two years with Pillsbury as Sales Manager for the Tennessee and Alabama Region. He began working in the Military Channel in 1990.

White served in several different capacities including Headquarters Manager, Region Manager and National Account Manager in his twelve years with the Pillsbury Company. In 2002, Pillsbury was acquired by General Mills and the Pillsbury dry items were spun off to International Multifoods. Shortly after, Multifoods was acquired by the J.M. Smucker Company where he has served as Director of Sales for the past 14 years.

He currently manages many number 1 household names including Jif, Crisco, Smuckers, Folgers, Milkbone, Meow Mix, Pillsbury, Martha White, Hungry Jack, and 31 additional brands.

Jeff is married with two kids and enjoys traveling and attending Sporting and Musical Events all over the world. He has two children both in the Nashville area.
